John,

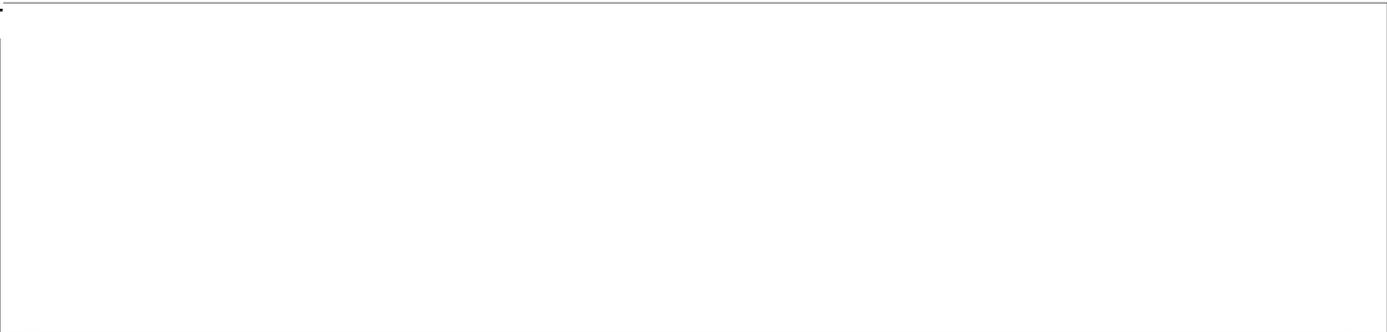

I see more and more this.
So there is some program.

d. We will take a hard look at the length of the Course. Student evaluations recommended that the Course be extended by one day to four and one-half days. I am still not sure that extending the Course will reap any benefits. As the Course stands, it looks good to the DO because it is short. Also on the plus side, the students learned what we wanted them to learn in the three and one-half days total immersion. However, they were burned out by the last afternoon.

e. Three changes are necessary in the Course material.

(1) Automated systems will be cut to one hour vs. two and one-half. Course critiques were in the majority agreement that the segment was too long.

(2) The State Department presentation will be shelved and possibly included in an advanced course, with more of an accent on U.S. policy toward the terrorism problem.

5. Conclusion

The first running of the UTC was successful. The student responses were enthusiastic and word is out that it is a great course. All of the students were going to be able to use the Course material, the level of interest was high, and all the spaces-plus in the class were utilized. The attendance of all directorates is also very encouraging.
